

Prepare For Wolf Road Condemnation

The question of securing the right of way thru the Cleveland farm for the Wolf road south of Mokena is entirely in the hands of the Will County right of way committee and the people of Mokena feel that the committee should take immediate action to get the right of way cleaned up this winter so the paving can be completed to the Lincoln highway by next fall at the very latest. The consensus of opinion in Mokena is that the Wolf road must go straight thru the Cleveland farm to the Lincoln highway and that no other location should be considered. Too much time has been wasted in dallying on the question just where to locate the route so as to meet with Mr. Cleveland's approval, but as nothing definite was being arrived at the Mokena Citizens Committee finally in conjunction with Supervisor William Kampe of Frankfort township, went on record advocating that the Will County Bond Issue and Right of way committees take the route thru the Cleveland timberland as originally surveyed by the county and approved by the state a year ago.

Wm. North, chairman of the Will County right of way committees declares that a condemnation suit to procure the right of way thru the Cleveland farm is imminent. He says that he and his committee will get busy right after New Year to get the right of way in question and wherever they encounter refusals for a settlement, condemnation proceedings will be started. Mr. North promises a speedy action and the Mokena people are anxiously awaiting the outcome of this promise. They know that the whole matter now rests with the right of way committee to deliver the goods.

Mr. Cleveland left a week ago for his annual winter sojourn in Florida. Mr. North advises that it is not necessary for Mr. Cleveland to be here in order to negotiate any terms of agreement on the right of way matter, as the right of way committee will deal direct with Attorney Wm. Heise who represents Mr. Cleveland's interests.

Cook County to Pave 5 Miles on Wolf Rd.

Wolf road in Cook County is receiving attention on the 1931 road paving program of that county. According to reports of the past week, the county will ask for bids in January for the construction of a large number of highways and in the list appears Wolf road with 5.1 miles of paving from Golf road to Hintz road.

Contracts are to be let in February and work will be started on these projects as early in the spring as the weather conditions will permit.

Horse Killed When Struck by Auto

While Walter Stelter was driving on 147th street northeast of Tinley Park recently, a number of horses were being driven across the street by a farmer. One horse got in the way of the auto and was killed in the crash ensuing. Mr. Stelter's auto was quite badly damaged, but Mr. Stelter escaped injury. The crash has resulted in a law suit it is understood.

Orland Considering Zoning Ordinance

Orland Park is looking toward the future development of the territory and the village board is considering the passage of a zoning ordinance.

This ordinance, alderman Henry Waje declares, will provide for zoning four districts, namely industrial, commercial, residence and apartment houses. Alderman Waje states that a number of drafts for the proposed ordinance have been considered but as some opposition has arisen against factory sites, changes have had to be made in the draft of the ordinance, which will be considered before any final passage is decided on.

TINLEY GARDEN CLUB NEWS

HAPPY CHRISTMAS TIME
Laila Mitchell
O, Merry is the Christmas time,
With holly berries bright;
With festal board and treasures stored
In stockings soft and white.

And blessed is the Christmas time,
With music such as rare
A glorious strain o'er Bethlehem's plain,
When angel voices sang.

O, joyful is the Christmas time,
Each heart from grief beguiled;
But all the year hath Christmas cheer
For him that loves a child.

On Friday, December 19, 1930, the Tinley Park Garden Club enjoyed a very interesting meeting in the comfortable living room of the J. Klepfer home. After all business had been taken care of, Mrs. Alice Anderson, program chairman took charge of affairs. Immediately the holiday spirit became prevalent. There was the singing of many old, beautiful Christmas songs, by all the members. Mrs. Fred Goebel and Mrs. Alice Anderson sang as a duet, "Holy Night". Mrs. John Klepfer was at the piano. Following this came a playlet, the title of which was "Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus", written by Mrs. J. Swisher, who took the part of Mrs. Santa Claus. Alice Anderson made an ideal Santa. The sketch was short and humorous. A laugh for everyone.

On Monday evening, December 22, 1930, a bit of melody was wafted out on the snowy air, as the chorists, mostly children, sang Christmas Carols around the spruce tree, in a little park, awaiting the arrival of Mr. Santa Claus. He came too, just as he said he would, with a treat for every child present. The Rev. Fleming offered a short and impressive prayer.

"Christmas", how beautiful and sacred the word, and after all, could there be a more beautiful symphony than the music of childish voices singing praises to the Christ Child?

President W. R. James of the West Park Board, wishes to announce the official opening of the Mid-Winter flower show at Garfield Park Conservatory, beginning Christmas Day, December 25 and continuing until January 11, 1931. Throughout the entire floral exhibition, the doors of the Conservatory will remain open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. affording everyone an opportunity to come both day and night.

Over 10,000 gorgeous specimen plants, representing 45 species and varieties and grown especially for the Christmas Show, are waiting their chance to say "Merry Christmas" to visitors.

Garfield Park Conservatory is situated at Central Park Ave. and Lake St. (3800 West) and within reasonable range of all transportation lines. There is no admission charge and everyone is cordially invited to make frequent trips to the largest Conservatory under one roof in the world.

Two Men Hurt In Trench Cavein At Frankfort Wed.

Two men, employees of the Meyer Construction company which is laying a natural gas pipe line near Frankfort, were caught in a cave-in of a deep ditch about 6 o'clock Tuesday night and were buried to their heads.

One of the victims, Anton Lexa, 38 years old, Crete suffered a fractured spine and a broken shoulder. The other man, Roy Jenin, 25 years old, Hazelcrest, Ill., is suffering from bruises and shock.

Fellow workmen dug for more than an hour before the pair could be lifted out. They were taken to Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, where they were attended by Dr. W. V. Hedges. The doctor said that he believed both would recover.

The two were working in the ditch at a point where it enters a hill. Suddenly the sides caved in and the men were caught and held fast. Fortunately their heads were free so they could get air altho the pressure on their chests made breathing difficult. Lexa is married and Jenin single.

Mokena Camp Fire Girls Club News

Eleanor Hall, Official Reporter
The Morning Star Camp Fire Girls of Mokena held a council meeting at the Mokena school house, Saturday afternoon. Beads were awarded and a decision was made to meet next Saturday at the school house to work on head bands. The examination for Wood Gatherer has been postponed until the next regular meeting which will be held at 3 p. m. on January 10th, 1931. It will also be a council meeting.

Tinley Lions To Sponsor Minstrel

Tinley Lions at their meeting Mon. launched their project of holding a minstrel show in February. Plans are well in process of development. The members will be directed and coached by Wm. Ward of Midlothian who is an old time minstrel and has had considerable experience in coaching community minstrels. More details will be available later.

Happy New Year Greetings

Another year has passed into history. With it has passed sorrow and joy and in its wake it has left memories, oome bitter, others hallowed.

The loss of a loved one, failures to attain certain aims and ambitions; reverses in business and other matters, which have left bitter memories, and yet on the other hand, loss of a loved one has left hallowed memories. All has not been sorrow and disappointment, but there has also been golden sunshine; the warmth of love and the joy of doing for others; blessings in the way of success, health and good fortune have in many instances made the year 1930, whose sands are running low in the hour glass of Time, a year of happiness to some.

The year 1930 now belongs to the years of the ages. Every 12 months holds the same allotment of sorrow or joy, but with varying degrees when applied to individual lives.

The future, on whose threshold we are now standing, is as a veiled mystery. We can not discern what the future portends, but only can we see and tell what it holds in store as it is unfolded from hour to hour.

Let us so order our lives for 1931 that no matter what the fleeting hours will reveal, we will be ready to meet whatever is in store for us, whether of good fortune, joy or otherwise.

Let us live, not only for ourselves, but for humanity; bury all hatreds, petty selfishness and strife; petty bickerings and evil desires, for these things are only chaff and only tend to make us unhappy.

Let us do all the good we can; uphold the laws of our nation; build up our communities; preach and promote prosperity; be kind and helpful to each other and in the final analysis let the Golden Rule be the guide of our lives thru the unknown hours of 1931.

The editor wishes his readers the Best of Health, Happiness and Prosperity for 1931.

Tinley Lions Relief Com. Makes Report

The Relief Committee of the Lions Club wishes to report to date as follows:

Collection of Clothing as listed by Mrs. Rogers. Also numerous other articles which Mrs. Rogers has distributed most of herself. It was considered labor, but she feels well repaid.

Mrs. Gertrude Swisher is caring for half a dozen youngsters with noon day lunches on school days. This includes milk, sandwiches and fruit. The expense was borne by the Lions' club and the labor by Mrs. Swisher.

We feel that an empty stomach is not conducive to good scholarship. This is borne out by report of the teachers on the conduct of the children.

The Lions' club wishes to publicly convey their appreciation and thanks to the many who have contributed to the clothes fund.

To the Parent-Teachers Association also for their contribution of $5.00; to Miss Morningstar of the Tinley Public School staff for $5.00; to Messrs. Wm. Funk, John Boyer and Clarence Goessel for $1.00 each, the same being their share of the Lions' club attendance drawings.

At the last meeting of the Lions a collection from the membership netted $6.30 cash for the Relief Fund.

Another project of relief is the giving of sixteen baskets packed with groceries, meat, flour, etc. This is being done by the Royal Neighbors assisted by the American Legion and the Lions club.

We are fortunate in Tinley Park in not having many cases to care for.

We understand that Mokena folks tendered their assistance to Tinley Park. We appreciate this also.

110 Will Co. Students At Champaign

One hundred and ten students from Will County are attending the University of Illinois this winter, an announcement of official figures this week revealed. They are practically all home now for the holidays.

The registration for the current year will exceed 15,000—all resident students.

Cook County, the largest in the state, again leads all others in total enrollment in the Urbana—Champaign departments of the University with 3,456 students. An additional 1,028 Cook County students attend the University's College of Medicine, College of Dentistry, and School of Pharmacy, all located in Chicago.

Champaign County with 1,270 students has the second largest enrollment because so many families move to the Twin Cities during the time their sons and daughters are in school. Altogether 14 counties have more than 100 representatives at the Uni-

Mission Serves Free Meals to 3,627

The Morning Star Mission of Joliet is more than busy these cold days caring for the homeless and friendless. According to report of Supt. Peter McCarthy the Mission has furnished 3,627 free meals during December, the largest in the history of the mission.

Among the other activities of the Mission are the following:

Free beds 948; free clothing to 461 persons; free new testaments 15; free gospels 100; police court and jail visits 26; relief to 52 families including groceries, meat, coal and clothing, paid-rail road fares for 12 persons.

"November and December we have open house," Supt. McCarthy says "where you get something to eat at any time of the day from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. Sandwiches, meat, beans or potatoes, coffee and bismarks are served."

Gas Pipe Line To Follow R. I. Into Chicago

First indication of the actual entry of natural gas into Chicago for distribution by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company was given Mon. with the leasing from the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific of a right of way for gas mains. For approximately 180 miles out from Chicago the lease extends, and its provisions cover the laying and maintenance of two twenty-four-inch mains. The right of way is leased by the Continental Construction Co. which was organized jointly by Cities Service, Insull interests, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation and others for the purpose of piping gas to Chicago and to intermediate points. The pipe line will follow the Rock Island right of way, where possible, between Rock Island and Chicago. The railroad will receive an annual rental at the rate of $25 a mile.

Although two ordinary gas mains of 24-inch diameter would scarcely serve more than a single neighborhood, the lines in question will be an important factor in Chicago gas resources. The lines will be under high pressure, tested for 500 to 600 pounds, and carrying at least half that pressure. They will deliver as much gas as an ordinary main forty or fifty feet in diameter would under pressures of six or ten pounds.

One result of the use of natural gas on a large scale will be the better development of house heating by gas, in the opinion of engineers. Natural gas is richer and burns with more heat and less light than the ordinary type. Rates now are adjusted to take account of this, and if special arrangements are made in the future, gas heating may become a more serious competitor than it has in the past.

The new gas mains will mean much for the future of all the territory between Joliet and Chicago.

Orland Community Xmas Tree Success

The first community tree Orland has ever had was a wonderful event this year. The large tree, prettily decorated and lighted, graced the Orland Park school yard and on Christmas eve carols were sung around the tree and a very pleasing program given.

The P. T. A. sponsored the community tree and the exercises.

Gives Bright Touch to Chapeaux; Dress "Comfy" for Sports Events

WHILE, perhaps, not so much is being said about handsome ornaments being featured as trimming for the mid-winter chapeau, yet a great deal is being done. Recent showings of new hats emphasize the fact of their voguishness very definitely.

As they are now playing their glittering role in the realm of millinery, ornaments are quite impartial as to whether they hobnob with velvet, satin or felt, or be the medium what it may, which goes to make up the vivacious little models which designers are creating for immediate wear.

Speaking of satin, it is making an unusually early appearance, but here it is, nevertheless, looking too smart and attractive for words, as it announces itself in terms of beguiling new tricornes and other off-the-face effects or as it forms alliance with perhaps velvet or felt as it is doing in repeated instances.

That very attractive model which is shown below to the left in this group of chic midwinter hat fashions is of satin. Hand-sewed strips of the black satin cover the foundation. The ornament which holds the drape and the loop in position is of elaborate design, the motif carried out in rhinestones in a silver mounting.

An interesting development in recent showings is the felt hat trimmed with satin. The model shown to the right below surmounts a black french felt with a puffed collar of satin, catch-crowns. Ornaments are in high favor. Much of the fun, when one goes out for ice and snow sports, is to dress to the part in picturesque fashion. An outfit may be ever so "comfy" but if it lacks style and beauty—well, what's the use of going skating, skiing and tobogganing if one does not add a note of chic and a splash of brilliant color to the scene?

As in all other phases of fashion, the ensemble's the thing! Every item from the crown of her head to the tip of her toes must combine to achieve a unified costume for the sportswoman who skis, skates and toboggans in modish attire.

The outfit pictured below is embellished with meticulous care. In this instance the navy blue flannel trousers and sweater—which has gone modernistic in color and design—have a gay colorful border matched in the gloves, beret and socks.

Bold checks, stripes and angora embroidery play a lively part in contributing the "touch that tells" to clothes as they dart across ice or dash down hill and across vale in the snow. Many women like the freedom afforded by trousered costumes, the

GOOD THINGS OF VARIOUS KINDS

A salmon dish flavored with almonds makes an excellent late supper dish. It may be prepared ahead of time, and this is an advantage.

Almond Souffle of Salmon.—Shred one pound of cooked salmon, add one-fourth pound of finely minced blanched almonds, one teaspoonful each of onion juice and worcestershire sauce, one egg, white and yolk beaten separately; salt to season and one cupful of whipped cream folded in the last of all. Turn into well oiled molds and set in water. Cook for thirty minutes or until the center is firm. Serve with a white sauce.

Shrimp Supper Dish.—Take one pound of small shrimps, two large slices of bread. Moisten the bread with two cupfuls of milk, add a teaspoonful each of onion juice and worcestershire sauce, three sprigs each of parsley and thyme, one bay leaf, a blade of mace finely chopped, one-fourth of a grated nutmeg and a tablespoonful of butter. Mix well and bake in a casserole; cover with buttered crumbs.

Cream Cheese Pie.—Mix one-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and the grated rind of an orange. Add one and one-half cups of cream cheese, work in one-half cupful of cream, add two beaten egg yolks and a few drops of vanilla, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a pastry shell and bake in a slow oven until firm. Serve cold with strawberry jam.

Cheese Loaf.—Take two cupfuls of grated cheese, one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of mashed potato, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two well beaten eggs. Mix the cheese, bread crumbs, potatoes and seasonings. Add the yolks of the eggs and mix well, then fold in the whites of the eggs. Put into a greased bread pan and bake in a hot oven twenty minutes or until firm.

Spider Has Well Been Called Natural Marvel

It is agreed by scientists that the spider is supreme in cunning, ruthless ferocity, inventiveness and courage. Careful study of various kinds of spiders has shown an intelligence that leaves mankind amazed, and their engineering skill and inventive ability is far greater than that of the average human.

A silken thread spun by a spider is often as thin as thirty-two millionths of an inch in diameter. If it were enlarged two thousand times it would be as big as an ordinary horsehair. Human hair enlarged the same number of times is six and a half inches in diameter. With this transparent wisp of line, spiders are able to bind animals several thousand times bigger than themselves, for they attack tadpoles, frogs, lizards and bats.

A small ringed snake, nine inches long, was found trapped by a spider. The spider, its body hardly bigger than a good-sized pea, had spun a web in the form of an inverted cone, from the top of which hung a silken cable. The snake was suspended by this cable still alive, its mouth muzzled with multiple strands of web and its tail tied by silken cord.—London Tit-Bits.

Too Much for Him

They had climbed as near as they dared to the crater of the volcano. It was smoking ominously.

"Let's go down and back to the hotel," he said suddenly. "I can't stand watching that thing any more."

"We've climbed all the way up here, and now you want to go right back," she demurred. "It isn't that you're afraid, is it?"

"Oh, no," he replied. "It's only that I can't endure watching that crater smoke after I've found that I've left my tobacco at home."

Logic

It was the first day of school for Helen and she was anxious for a front seat near her attractive teacher. Finding the coveted seats occupied she said to the teacher:

"I think you better make some of those boys move and give me a seat near you, so you won't be bothered with those mean boys."

FARM POULTRY

PROPER RATIONS FOR LAYING HENS

Large Amount of Wheat Is Favored by Expert.

Rations for the farm flock of laying hens and for the commercial flock are given by O. C. Ufford, extension poultryman at the Colorado Agricultural college.

A considerable amount of wheat is recommended in the ration for the farm flock, which is as follows:

Grain mixture—Cracked or whole corn, 40 pounds, and wheat, 60 pounds.

Mash mixture—20 pounds each of fine cornmeal, bran shorts and meat meal, and 20 pounds of either ground oats or barley. Ground wheat may be substituted for the bran and shorts.

For the commercial flock, the following ration is recommended when a green range is not used:

Grain mixture—Corn, 40 pounds, and wheat, 60 pounds.

Mash mixture—Cornmeal (yellow), 20 pounds; ground barley or ground oats, 15 pounds; wheat middlings, 15 pounds; wheat bran, 20 pounds; meat meal, 15 pounds; dried buttermilk, 5 pounds; alfalfa leaf meal, 5 pounds; steamed bone meal, 4 pounds; finely ground oyster shell, 2 pounds, and salt, 1 pound.

Due to the high price of corn, ground hog millet may be substituted entirely or in part for an equal amount of corn in the laying ration. Ufford suggests. Tests have shown that millet is equal to corn in feeding for hogs, and it is believed that its value is equally as great as a poultry feed.

Comfortable House Big Necessity for Winter

The first necessity in proper winter care of the flock is to make the poultry house comfortable. Well housed is more than half of being well kept for poultry during the winter time. That a good poultry house is a profitable investment because of the increased winter production which it makes possible, has been demonstrated time after time.

Unfortunately, it is not possible for every farmer to have just the kind of a chicken house he would like, but no farmer should attempt to keep chickens through the winter unless he has some building that can be used for poultry headquarters. Each flock-owner should make the most of his opportunities to make the birds as comfortable as possible.

Winter Laying Flocks Value Cod Liver Oil

Good laying flocks need cod-liver oil during the dark winter months, according to W. M. Vernon, Iowa State college. The months in which fowls should have the oil are from December 1 to April 1.

The rate of feeding the oil should be one quart of the oil to 100 pounds of mash. The oil is first mixed with bran or the mineral mixture and then mixed in the larger amount of feed.

If hens are kept in the house during the winter months this method of feeding is especially recommended and a noon mash may help to increase production.

Poultry Facts

Turkey eggs hatch in 28 days.

One had best avoid inbreeding at least until he has had considerable experience.

A practical satisfactory method for the person who does not wish to trapnest or pedigree is to buy cockerels preferably as chicks or eggs from a good breeder.

Before trying to raise turkeys, get all the information you can about them. Learn what diseases they are likely to have and be able to recognize them when they occur.

Eggs for hatching should be gathered frequently and held at a uniform temperature, about 50 degrees.

The egg producer can get away with many practices on his farm that the breeder cannot afford to countenance for a moment.

Eggs should be gathered several times a day in cold weather to prevent chilling. Produce as clean eggs as possible, but wipe any that are dirty with a cloth dipped in warm water.

The construction of expensive, elaborate poultry houses should be discouraged, but, on the other hand, no farmer should construct a poultry house that is not durable and comfortable.

Mash feed should be moistened and crumbly, not sloppy, with milk or buttermilk. To this you may add potato peelings, or grains that have been cooked. In case you do not have the milk or buttermilk, use water, but remember that the meat scraps should be used in this case.

Mules Have to Carry Autos Over Mountains

Automobiles are carried by mules in the interior of Columbia. Bucaramanga, in the mountains, gets its motor cars in this way from the nearest railroad terminus, at El Conchal, 22 miles distant.

The cars are disassembled as completely as possible to avoid overloading the animals.

About 25 different packages are necessary in the knocking down process, one unit containing the motor, another the chassis, a third the body, and the rest containing such parts as the battery, springs, wheels, tires and so on. For the heavier units two mules are necessary, two wooden supports or bars being laid across their backs. The other parts are strapped on the backs of individual mules.

"Wandering Jew" Legends

A legend of a surviving witness of the Crucifixion, who is represented as the victim of a curse, was long current in Jerusalem, and is frequently referred to in records of travels in the Holy land.

His name is generally given as Joannes Buttareus, in Italian as "Gud-smiler." There is an old Italian legend that tells of a similar punishment inflicted on a soldier who struck Christ before the High Priest, and later on this soldier was identified as Melbus, whose ear was cut off by Peter.

New Fields to Conquer

The English channel has been swum so often that it no longer is regarded as a great stunt. The Hellespont's strong tide has been successfully breasted by many men and a woman. The same woman claims to have swum the strait of Gibraltar, but the record is unrecognized as it was not official. A man has swum the length of the Panama canal, a little dash of 50 miles, but the Suez canal, 85 miles, has not yet been attempted.

Principle and Party

The retort, "Damn your principles! Stick to your party," was not made by an American statesman. Lord Beaconsfield (Disraeli) said that to Bulwer Lytton when the latter told the prime minister he could not vote for a certain parliamentary measure because it was against his principles.

ing it to the crown at one side with a round ornament set with rhinestones.

is really amazing how effectively a single rich ornament can achieve distinction for the hat which is otherwise void of trimming. To demonstrate, attention is called to the first hat here pictured. The wide-at-the-sides brim of this choice velvet model which folds back from the face so flatteringly is clasped with an exquisite fan-shaped rhinestone ornament.

Even the simple little felt hat is yielding to the persuasion of glittering rhinestone embellishment. In the instance of the black felt tricorn hat illustrated at the top to the right, two crystal buttons are positioned at a strategic point at the side of the trousers reaching almost to the ankles, with just enough space between to reveal gay socks which of course are as boldly colorful and designful as the decorative sweaters, scarfs and other details which go to make up a perfect outdoor ensemble.

Snowproof Norwegian cloth is a favored medium for these trouser suits. Waterproof suede cloth is also practical and makes up very attractively in such rich colors as bottle green, dark red, also navy blue. The accessories which complete these suits in dark warm tones indulge in a riot of vivid colors, as for instance a costume of navy suede with cap and scarf flaunting gay Roman stripes.

Review of the Year 1930 at Home and in Other Lands

Unemployment and Economic Depression Generally Prevail—Steps Toward World Peace—Democrats Win in United States Elections—South American Revolutions.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PROSPERITY, which was "just around the corner" at the beginning of 1930, gave the world no more than an occasional glimpse of her face during the year. Business depression, increasing unemployment, continuing low prices for agricultural products and declining markets for securities prevailed generally.

Skilled observers professed to see war clouds again gathering over the Balkans, but notable steps were taken in the direction of world peace and disarmament. The United States, Great Britain and Japan signed the London naval limitation treaty, and toward the close of the year there were indications that France and Italy, settling their parity dispute, would make it a five-power pact. Some progress was achieved by the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations. The revision of German reparations, known as the Young plan, was adopted by all nations concerned and put into effect, although Germany was not hopeful of its ultimate success. The evacuation of the Rhineland by the allied forces was completed.

China's long, bloody and confused civil war ended in victory for the Nationalist government. Popular and military revolutions upset the governments of five Latin-American republics.

Though governmental and other agencies in the United States strove throughout the year to relieve the unfortunate economic conditions, results of these efforts were slow in appearing. Consequently the voters went to the polls in November and expressed their dissatisfaction in the customary manner. There was a Democratic landslide that covered most of the country and the Republican party virtually lost its control of both houses of the congress that convenes in March, 1931. However, the national leaders of the victorious Democrats pledged their party to co-operation with the Republican administration in all measures designed to bring prosperity around that corner, and business was reassured by the promise that there would be no attempt for some time to revise the tariff act passed in June.

Industrial and financial distress in the United States was greatly increased by drought that prevailed all summer in the Mississippi and Ohio river states and extended as far east as the Virginias. National and state governments afforded speedy relief to the sufferers. As winter neared numerous organizations throughout the country went into action to alleviate the unemployment situation, their aim being to supply those out of work with jobs rather than charity doles. Public building and highway projects were started and speeded up, and great industrial and transportation concerns sought means to increase the number of their employees.

All in all, 1930 was not a happy year for the world.

INTERNATIONAL

THREE months of intensive debate, diplomatic negotiation, study of experts' figures and mutual concessions brought forth the London naval treaty, which was signed on April 22 by the delegates of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy. By this pact the first three powers agreed to the extension of the Washington treaty so that the reduction and limitation of their navies should apply to cruisers and lesser vessels. France and Italy failed utterly to reach an accord as to what their relative naval strength should be. Consequently they subscribed to only those parts of the London treaty that provided for a battleship building "holiday" and prescribed various rules designed to humanize submarine warfare.

France and Italy held intermittent conversations during the rest of the year, but could not settle their differences. The one insurmountable obstacle was Italy's demand that her right to naval parity with France be admitted, and France's flat refusal to yield this point.

League Receives Briand's Scheme. In September the assembly of the League of Nations listened politely while M. Briand, French foreign minister, expounded his pet scheme for a federation of European states. Other statesmen cautiously praised the plan and it was accepted in principle by the assembly and referred to a special committee which will report to the 1931 meeting.

Twenty-eight of the nations represented at Geneva signed on October 2 a treaty guaranteeing financial aid to any signatory state that is the victim of warlike aggression.

Late in August nine of the smaller nations of central Europe held a conference in Warsaw and agreed on a concerted program of action mainly in furtherance of their agrarian interests. The pact was signed by Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Finland, Hungary, Latvia, Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia. Lithuania was absent because of her political differences with Poland. France was quick to strengthen her friendship with these states by offering credits.

During the year there were many indications that Italy was drawing in to close co-operation with Germany and Russia.

After being ratified by all the nations concerned, the Young plan for reparations was put into effect on May 9. Gates W. McGarrah of New York already had been elected president of the bank for international settlements created by the plan. On May 19 the last of the French troops in the Rhineland began moving out, the evacuation being completed June 30. A separate reparations settlement was signed in April by Hungary, Austria and the states in the little entente.

Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state of the United States, was elected a member of the World Court in September to fill out the term of Charles Evans Hughes.

The mandate commission of the League of Nations made in August its long awaited report on the Palestine conflicts between Jews and Arabs, placing the blame on Great Britain. In the fall the British government announced a new policy concerning Palestine which would stop for the present any further immigration of Jews into the Holy Land. Zionists everywhere protested vigorously and President Chaim Weizmann and other chief officers of the World Zionists organization resigned.

Russia's Great Conspiracy Story. Early in November the government of Russia announced that it had uncovered a gigantic plot against the Soviet regime in which a number of "capitalistic" states were said to be involved. Among many individuals who were alleged to have a part in the conspiracy were former Premier Poincare and Foreign Minister Briand of France and Sir Henri Deterding, British oil magnate. Eight Russian engineers were put on trial, confessed and were sentenced to terms in prison. Paris and London looked on the whole thing as a "frame-up."

Late in January Mexico severed diplomatic relations with Russia because of alleged Communist insults. In the United States the advocates of a policy of resumption of relations with the Soviet government were jolted by revelations that the latter had been selling wheat short on the American grain exchanges, aiding in the demoralization of prices. At the same time it became evident that the Moscow government was dumping grain in the European markets at prices far below the cost of production. The whole affair created a great stir here and abroad but nothing much could be done about it.

FOREIGN

GREAT BRITAIN'S Labor government struggled manfully throughout the year to solve the nation's economic problems, but found that this could not be done in a short time. Unemployment continued to increase, passing the two million mark in June, and industrial depression was little lightened if at all. However, no one seemed to have a better solution to offer than Prime Minister MacDonald and his ministers, so they held on to their power. They had the aid of a national advisory council. Chancellor Snowden devised a satisfactory budget that was by no means socialistic, and parliament passed some of the legislation asked by the government.

Two matters of vast import demanded such attention from the British empire's rulers. One was the effort to develop the empire as an economic unit, and the imperial conference which was held in London undertook this task. The various dominions were represented by some of their best minds and the discussions continued until well into November. But the results were extremely disappointing. The main issue was economic co-operation, and in this nothing was accomplished because the dominions and the British government could not agree concerning free trade, protection and preferential rates within the empire.

Problem of India.

The increasing independence of the dominions was marked by the tacit understanding that henceforth they shall have the right to accredit their own diplomats to foreign countries, and may communicate with one another and with Great Britain, not through governors general, but directly. It was decided to create a tribunal for the settlement of intra-imperial disputes.

The future status of India within the empire was a question that troubled the British throughout the year, and it was complicated by the non-resistance rebellion conducted by Mahatma Gandhi and his numerous followers. As is their custom, the Communists took advantage of the situation to convert the peaceful revolt of the Indian Nationalists into riotous demonstrations, and the police and military forces had to handle not only these but also attacks on the northwestern frontier by tribesmen. Gandhi and many of his lieutenants were put in prison but their civil disobedience campaign never slackened. One of its frequent manifestations was the making of salt contrary to the laws. The All-India congress, consisting largely of Gandhi's adherents, decided to boycott the roundtable conference arranged for late in the year, because their demand was for the absolute independence of India.

The roundtable conference opened in London November 12 with much pomp and ceremony, the native princes, the Hindus, the Moslems and even the "untouchables" being represented by their ablest men—and by two brilliant women. The Indians made it clear they would accept nothing less than dominion status, and some of them bitterly attacked the British methods of rule in India. The problem before the conference and the government was so complex that there was no chance for its solution for many months. One definite decision reached was that Burma should be made a separate dominion.

In the Canadian national election on July 28 the Conservatives completely upset the Liberal government headed by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and secured a comfortable majority in the dominion parliament, and Richard B. Bennett, their leader, became prime minister. The new government took steps at once to relieve the unemployment situation and to help the farmers, one being the almost complete discontinuance of immigration from Europe.

German Fascists Win.

As in most other countries, political events in Germany reflected the prevailing discontent of the people, and there it was aggravated by the feeling that they were oppressed by the reparations. Chancellor Mueller and his cabinet resigned in March because of dissatisfaction with the ratification of the Young plan and with the budget and financial reforms proposed. Dr. Heinrich Brüning, Centrist leader, became chancellor and formed a ministry of members of the five middle parties. The National Socialists and the Communists kept up continual agitation and President Hindenburg dissolved the reichstag on July 18. In the elections which were held September 14 the National Socialists, commonly called the Fascists, won a most surprising and tremendous victory. They increased the number of their seats in the reichstag from 12 to 107, and their popular vote from 800,000 to more than 6,000,000. Their titular leader is Adolf Hitler who, being an Austrian, could not be elected to the reichstag.

France, Spain and Italy.

One small provision in the finance bill brought a vote of lack of confidence in the French chamber of deputies in February and the Tardieu ministry was forced to resign. It was succeeded by a Radical-Socialist cabinet formed by Chautemps which was defeated on its first appearance. Tardieu then was recalled, and held on through a stormy summer and fall, but early in December the senate forced him and his cabinet to resign, and Theodore Steeg undertook to form a new ministry. France maintained her position as one of the most prosperous countries of Europe, and gathered an immense store of gold. She was largely preoccupied with national defense and went ahead with her plan for a powerful chain of fortifications on her eastern frontier.

Gen. Primo de Rivera, who had been dictator of Spain for more than six years, resigned on January 28, partly under compulsion, when faced with the threat of a military revolt. He was succeeded by Gen. Damsa Berenguer. Throughout the year there were repeated strikes, food riots and violent demonstrations by students and in the middle of December a serious rebellion broke out in the northern part of the country.

Economy was the continual cry of the Italian government, Premier Mussolini being its spokesman, and his measures toward that end were put through with thoroughness and dispatch. They extended to the reduction of salaries of all governmental employees, who are remarkably numerous there, and all employees were urged to follow suit. In compensation, the cost of living was brought down by the lowering of prices of food and other necessities. At the same time the Duce continued his program of extensive public works, like drainage and restoration of waste lands, giving employment to many men.

Carol on Rumanian Throne.

Carol, former crown prince of Rumania, with the aid of prominent Rumanians, executed a startling coup d'etat in June. From his exile in France he flew to his native country in an airplane and two days later the parliament declared him king and his little son, who had held the title, heir to the throne. Carol soon began planning for his coronation, but his estranged wife declined to be reconciled and the statesmen said the ceremony could not be held unless she were present or the marriage were dissolved. As a result of this dispute Premier Maniu resigned in October and Carol went ahead with his plans.

An interesting if not important event was the marriage on October 25 of King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna, daughter of the king and queen of Italy.

Latin-American Revolutions.

Revolt flamed in four South American republics. Four men who had been virtual dictators were ousted. Four new governments were established. As a preliminary to these events there was a revolution in the Dominican republic in February, the immediate cause being the announced intention of President Horacio Vasquez to stand for re-election. After a few skirmishes Vasquez was forced out of office, being succeeded temporarily by General Urena. Elections were held on May 16 and Gen. Rafael Trujillo was chosen president and inaugurated three months later.

Bolivia was next on the list. There Dr. Hernando Siles tried, like Vasquez, to perpetuate his rule and was driven from office in May by the insurgents. He was permitted to take refuge in Chile, and his much hated right hand man, Gen. Hans Kundt of Prussia, fled back to his German home. A military junta took over the government, its chief being Gen. Carlos Blanco Gallardo.

Peru followed suit in August. The officers of the army led a movement against President Augusto B. Leguia who had held the office for more than ten years and considered himself almost irremovable. He was forced to resign, turning over his powers to a military junta, and later Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro was made provisional president. Leguia had been recognized as an efficient business president and Peru made great material strides during his regime, but the revolutionists accused him of "denial of civil liberties" and also of nepotism and the sale of concessions. He was imprisoned to await trial.

Late in August President Hipolito Irigoyen of Argentina was warned by his minister of justice that a revolution might break out immediately. A few days later the prediction was fulfilled, the high army and navy officers leading their commands in a revolt that speedily ousted the aged chief executive, who was seriously ill. Only in Buenos Aires was there any popular opposition to the revolution, and this was soon quelled with some bloodshed. Gen. Jose Francisco Uriburu, chief of the insurgents, became the provisional president on September 6. Irigoyen for years had enjoyed great personal popularity in Argentina, was president from 1916 to 1922 and was elected again in 1928. But he had become senile and sick and lost his hold on the people.

Vargas Rules Brazil.

Brazil's revolution broke out early in October and was in a way a war between the states, the leader of each striving to seize the central government. The term of President Washington Luis was soon to expire but his favored candidate, Dr. Julio Prestes, president of the state of Sao Paulo, had been elected, allegedly by fraud. The defeated liberal candidate, Dr. Getulio Vargas, former president of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, started a revolt to prevent the inauguration of Prestes, and the movement spread to state after state, all the insurgent armies converging on Rio de Janeiro, the national capital. The government resisted stubbornly, but considerable parts of the army and navy deserted it and after a few weeks of bloody fighting Luis was ousted. The members of the junta that took over the government at once began quarreling and scheming, but Vargas promptly came up from the south with a large force of gaucho soldiers and his authority was recognized. He was installed as provisional president on November 3.

Pascual Ortiz Rubio was inaugurated as president of Mexico on February 5 and selected a strong cabinet under whose rule the country promises to prosper. Especial attention is being paid to reorganization of agriculture and to education.

DOMESTIC

WITH less cause for complaint than the peoples of most other countries, the inhabitants of the United States were nevertheless dissatisfied and pessimistic. Overproduction by farmers and manufacturers and timidity of consumers resulted in business depression and unemployment that lasted throughout the year, despite all efforts to restore prosperity. The great drought played its evil part, affecting conditions in the entire country.

President Hoover's administration had another exceedingly difficult year. In the senate the Democrats were reinforced by the radical Republicans and the coalition fought many of the Chief Executive's policies. After more than six months of debate the senate passed the Smoot tariff bill, embracing two features that were obnoxious to the President. These were the export debenture provision, carried over from the old farm relief legislation, and a clause transferring the flexible tariff power from the President to congress. The house of representatives eliminated these features, the senate was forced to yield, and on June 14 the so-called Hawley-Smoot tariff measure was finally enacted. It reached the highest protective level of any tariff law ever passed, with an average rate about 20 per cent above that of the Fordney-McCumber bill of 1922. In its entirety it was satisfying to nobody, but President Hoover signed it because he saw in its flexible provision the means of righting its injustices. Protests against the higher duties were received from many foreign governments.

Veterans' Pension Act.

There was another long and bitter wrangle over the veterans' pension bill. As first passed by congress it was wholly objectionable to the administration and was promptly vetoed, partly because it granted compensation for disabilities not incurred in active service and partly because it went "beyond the financial necessities of the situation." The house sustained the veto but the senate repassed the bill with some amendments. These were rejected by the representatives and a measure fairly acceptable to the administration was passed and signed. It inaugurated a vast pension system for all partly or wholly disabled veterans not already receiving compensation, no matter what their illness or when contracted. Soon after the enactment of this law the President put into effect the consolidation of the three bureaus that had been in charge of veterans of all wars and appointed Gen. Frank T. Hines as chief.

Some of the recommendations of the Wickersham law enforcement commission were adopted by congress, the most important being the transfer of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the Department of Justice. The change was made on July 1. Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock took command of the new bureau and former Commissioner James M. Moran was made head of a new industrial alcohol bureau under the Treasury department.

When William Howard Taft resigned as chief justice of the Supreme court on February 3, only five days before his death, President Hoover immediately named Charles Evans Hughes to succeed him. The appointment was confirmed by the senate with 26 votes in opposition. Then Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford passed away and Mr. Hoover picked Federal Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to fill the vacancy. Labor and negro organizations rose in opposition and the senate rejected the nomination by a vote of 41 to 39. The President then named Owen J. Roberts for the place and he was accepted.

Prohibition and the Election.

Prohibition as a political issue increased in importance as the months passed. A poll conducted by the Literary Digest indicated that the country was largely in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or at least of modification of the enforcement law. The liquor question was a great factor in the pre-election campaign in many states and had a decided effect on the results when the people went to the polls on November 4. The voters of Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts in a referendum were against prohibition by large majorities.

The election turned out to be very much of a landslide for the Democratic party. The Republican majorities in both senate and house were almost wiped out for the next congress, and many states and cities elected Democratic officials to replace Republicans. Naturally the more rabid opponents of the administration saw in all this a severe rebuke for President Hoover and his policies; but same opinion was that it was the natural result of unfortunate economic conditions.

With large appropriations available, the farm board worked for the relief of agriculture by promoting and financing various co-operatives; and later in the year undertook, with some success, to stabilize the price of wheat, which had fallen rapidly in all world markets. In this latter operation the board was forced to accumulate something like 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, the future disposal of which was an unsolved problem. Chairman Legge of the board campaigned unceasingly for reduction of wheat acreage.

Among the diplomatic appointments by the President were: Ralph H. Booth, minister to Denmark; Fred M. Dearing, ambassador to Peru; John N. Whiting, ambassador to Poland; Hanford W. MacNider, minister to Canada; W. Cameron Forbes, ambassador to Japan; W. M. Jardine, minister to Egypt; Herman Bernstein, minister to Albania; Nicholas Roosevelt, minister to Hungary, and J. Reuben Clark, Jr., ambassador to Mexico.

Taking of the fifteenth decennial census began on April 2. The final figures, announced in November, gave the population of the United States as 122,775,046. The increase for the decade was about 16.1 per cent.

On November 28, President Hoover appointed William N. Doak of Virginia secretary of labor to succeed James J. Davis, who had been elected senator from Pennsylvania.

The short session of congress opened December 2, and the President's message was largely concerned with measures of relief. Following to a great extent his recommendations, congress appropriated more than one hundred millions for an emergency construction program designed to aid the unemployment situation, and also set aside a large fund for loans to farmers who had suffered from the drought. Mr. Hoover transmitted to the senate the revised protocols of the World court and asked early action on them.

NECROLOGY

FIRST among the eminent Americans who died in 1930 must be placed William Howard Taft, who had been governor general of the Philippines, chief justice of the Supreme court of the United States and President of the Republic. On the day Mr. Taft died, March 8, Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford of the Supreme court also passed away. Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of the gyroscope, and Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer in aviation, were taken by death, as were also Congressman Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania, indomitable foe of the "dope" traffic; Bishop C. P. Anderson, primate of the Episcopal church in America; Harry Payne Whitney, financier and sportsman, and Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, chief of staff of the American army during the World war.

Other names worthy of record are: In January—George E. Woodberry, author and educator; Clare Briggs, cartoonist; John D. Archbold, oil magnate; Prof. Henry J. "I Resolve To Cross Streets Carefully During 1931", reads the wording on the January safety poster just issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor Club to approximately 40,000 school rooms in northern Illinois and northern Indiana.

The "resolution" is portrayed on a blackboard, and several children are shown signing their names underneath it.

In a letter which accompanied the posters the motor club safety department urged teachers to present such a resolution to their pupils and to have it signed by them.

The child who signs his name to the resolution to be careful on the streets during 1931 will be more likely to remember the resolution and to act upon it than would the child who made the same resolution in a less dramatic manner, the letter points out.

NEW RELIGION OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY

That Russia may be involved in war with China seems almost certain unless the Powers can force these two countries to observe the articles of the Peace Pact that became effective July 24th. On the surface the cause seems to be such a trivial thing as the ownership of a railroad. China has seized a Manchurian railroad built by Russia. As a result of the seizure the mobilization of Soviet troops has taken place in Manchuria. Here we see two soldiers of the Russian Red Army writing their hygiene commandments for the detachment of which they are a part. The army is teaching its soldiers the importance of hygiene and is stressing the fact that during their term in the army it is practically their religion. The Russians claim they do not desire to have a war with China and the Chinese are equally emphatic in their avowal of keeping the peace. The leading powers have offered their good offices to bring the crisis thus created to an amicable settlement. (Herbert N. Y.)

The Mud of Midlothian

Five dollars in gold will be paid any reader who can prove conclusively that he or she at no time today thought it was Monday.

—Lions are excluded from this offer.

It would sound sweet to report that the five dollar prize was awarded to Lion Al. Clifton or Lion someone else.

Now we turn to last week's issue of the Suburban Star and once again it does not fail us. This time we have:

An Immortal Reply To An Old AGE Question
Is There a Santa Claus?

Grow old in Blue Island and never be disillusioned.

—Over the vast gloom of Robertson Park the night wind sighed; then a great silence reigned for a moment. Suddenly the air split with the shriek: "Three months till baseball practice." A cloaked figure slunk down Hamlin Avenue.

Jimmy Foster has taken up somnambulism, it is reported.

But no reader need skip the Mud from now on—we never, never will print Mr. Entrop's picture.

Uncle Casey says there's a point where mud ends and slander begins.

We think this slogan pretty hot:
Move to Tinley Park and perch on the rim of creation.

Among other items of industrial activity listed in last week's issue of the Illinois Industrial Review was: "Midlothian—Midlothian Water Association to purchase new pump and motor for water system".

But it did not say a word about all the excavating and plumbing Frank Lilly has been responsible for starting.

Uncle Casey rises and bows his thanks for the congratulations extended him on not making a single crack about New Year resolutions.

Individual Cans

MORE and more food products are now to be found in those convenient little 8-ounce or buffet size cans which lend themselves so readily to the uses of small families everywhere and to kitchenette cooking in our large cities where space is at a premium. They usually contain just enough food to serve two persons, though this may be stretched to three or four, or even more, by combining their contents with other foods.

A Great Variety

Among the fruits now available in these small size cans are apple sauce, apricots, blackberries, cherries, cranberry sauce, figs, fruits for salad, fruit cocktails, grapefruit, grapes, loganberries, peaches, pears, pineapple, plums, olives, prunes, raspberries, rhubarb and strawberries.

Among the vegetables are artichoke hearts, asparagus, beans, beets, Brussels sprouts, carrots, corn, kraut, mushrooms, peas, sauerkraut, spinach, succotash, tomatoes, turnips and vegetables for salad.

Some of the other products on sale in these 8-ounce cans are brown bread, mackerel, molasses, spaghetti and shrimp.

In Many Guises

But the mere enumeration of these products which come in small cans does not cover the many guises in which they are offered. The varieties of beans, for instance, include cut refuttee, cut wax, green lima, cut stringless, oven baked, red kidney and New England style baked oven beans. Beets are offered diced and sliced, and carrots diced alone and in combination with peas. There are nearly a dozen different packs of corn. Peaches are in halves or diced or sliced; pineapple crushed, in tidbits or just pineapple juice.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

The desire to wound him filled her with a burning fever. At least then he would not be able to go for weeks without remembering her. He would think of her. His attention, his desire would be hers. For an intolerable moment she yielded to the pain of this desire, then rose, wrapped her faded cotton kimono over her bathing suit and turned to face Loring. For a moment she was struck with a bright memory. His composure, his self-assurance were broken by the upthrust of some powerful emotion. She was a girl again, at her mother's house, running up the front steps, he stood at the top in her way, looking at her eagerly, his face so—alive, disturbing. They stared at each other, remembering, caught and held together. But Ernestine thrust this clamoring thought away from her. This man was Lillian's husband. This was Jonathan Hamilton's son, her father's son-in-law and adviser. He was one of her own people.

"You haven't been kind to Will, any of you," she stammered, trying to bring the talk back to commonplace. "He hasn't accepted our kindness," Loring answered slowly. "It isn't only that he's proud," said Ernestine. "He's vain as well. He's different. He's entitled to his vanity."

"At any cost?" asked Loring in a low voice. "I think there are men who would consider pride too dear for your happiness."

Ernestine's thoughts were in confusion. Loring's words came back to her, nothing but poverty and child-bearing and distress. Oh, she had had more than that from Will. She had had life! But was there to be for her no permanent peace and security with Will? She doubted it. And this doubt brought another: Has my whole instinct concerning Will been false? Is the family's judgment of him correct and my own mistaken? They think him erratic, trivial, unsteady, a failure—O God in Heaven, help me!

She turned away from Loring and took the path up through the shrubs toward the lawn about the house. She stumbled along as though to get away from the weakness, the tears, the fearful doubts that assailed her.

A motor had been humming along the lake road as she advanced from the water's edge, and now abruptly the car had entered the inlet road and swung about before the house. At this instant when she became conscious of it and its arrival, the air was still filled with the grinding of brakes, while the doors of the car spilled open and it disgorged three of four men who were carrying others. One of the two men lifted from the car was either dead or dying, for a thin bright stream ran from him as they laid him on the grass.

Bright red dripped from the running board. The other man was being carried indoors, while two tied their coats together to make a stretcher for the first man lifted out. A shout brought Madame Pastano from the house. The gardener, the houseman appeared on the run.

The whole household was instantly concentrated with skilled, practiced efficiency, so quiet, so quick that Ernestine was still gaping while it was all accomplished. The hose was running furiously across the lawn. The rug was brought from the floor of the car, and thrown into the lake, with rocks on top of it. The gardener put the hose inside the car and washed the floor and the running board. Another came from the garage with a different car rug, with a different license plate which he changed in a moment, and the driver of the car moved it up a little, so that the gravel could be picked up in a shovel, and carried and thrown into the lake, the fresh spot raked together.

Now old Grandmother Pastano, an ancient dame who spoke not a word of English, came from the porch, her head wrapped in a shawl, and got into the car and sat by the window, her thick jeweled hand resting on the edge of the glass. The car turned about and, with a different driver, moved sedately back along the lake road, whence it had come—as innocent appearing a vehicle as ever rode the highway.

No one had noticed her, there at the end of the lake walk, among the carefully cut shrubs. Ernestine moved back and came to the little summer house and sat down in it, for her limbs would carry her no farther.

The dreadful efficiencies of the Pastanos had all this time increased her wrath with Will. She could not bear it for him to be in a daze, to go about with the air which had exasperated Lillian the night Elaine was born—helpless, hopeless and confused. She couldn't stand the thought that he was a failure while these foreigners were thick with success.

Ruby Pastano had power. He loved money. He had it. He was dramatic and generous with it. He wanted it to show. He loved to empty his pockets—knowing well where he might refill them. And all summer she had compared this man's magic with Will's fumbling. Deliberately she had shut her ears against stories of political corruption, against tales of graft and bribery, of Ruby Pastano who was generous with policemen. Growing strong and well again, with the children blooming under the benevolence of this man whose kindness had been more acceptable to her than the kindness of her own people, because he was Will's friend and they were not, she had nevertheless been influenced to vexation beyond measure that Pastano should be so capable and Will so futile.

Now her tears fell from her eyes in great scalding drops.

What was she, Ernestine Briceland, doing in this band of cutthroats and thieves? All of Ruby Pastano's efficiency was to her nothing now but filthy rags. All her relationship with him and his family, from the beginning, had been built on misunderstanding. They were too far apart. Not even affection and liking, not even respect could bridge the gap, the difference in ideals, in standards, in purposes. This generous, unscrupulous man, bringing the victims of rapine so unflinchingly into the heart of his own home was Will's friend—not hers. She had nothing in common with these people, and she would never have. And she had shut the door of her heart against her own flesh and blood, because of Will's pride, and had opened it to these—these—She choked and her throat turned bitter with gall at them.

Abruptly she was conscious of an upsurging of patriotism. Her own people—her own kind! Americans, strong, decent, successful, ardent and clean. Kind—kind. Incapable of murder and plotting. These foreigners looked upon them all as fat geese to be plucked and did not understand the courage, the cleanness, the strength of kindness. She hated them with a furious hatred. The compulsion to be rid of them—of all of them, and Will as well—came upon her.

She was crying terribly. She ran back down the beach path and came to Loring playing in the water with Elaine and Peter.

"Get the boat," she said sobbingly, "I will go with you."

It was wonderful to relax in the comfort and security of home again. The children went off happily with old Annie, who had cared for Lillian and Ernestine when they were small, and who had always stayed with mamma, a privileged member of the household. Lillian scarcely left Ernestine's side a moment.

Papa planned softly about going into Chicago in the morning, to set through to a finish the details of the trust funds for his two girls. Loring kept his distance, reading and smoking by the table at the far end of the long porch.

Ernestine was almost asleep, relaxed and comfortable in her body for the first time in many weeks, and she was almost inattentive to papa's voice going gently on with plans.

"I will deed the Sheridan road house over to you, darling. Mamma and I will be in New York most of the time, but when we are in Chicago we will stay there with you. Loring told us that you would come back sooner if I withheld your settlement." Something clicked in Ernestine's mind—a small sound, as though a lock had been unbolted. But she went on to sleep calmly enough, carrying down with her into unconsciousness her trouble and her pain. Loring said she would come back—papa had been so willing to obey her wish about not having her money, because Loring said she would come back the sooner.

She slept deeply, all through the long evening, all through the night. It was the first clear flush of dawn when she awoke, sat up under the light cover that mamma had thrown over her there on the porch swing and looked out across the water.

She awoke with a conviction. She could not do this. She could not leave Will. It was impossible. By what route she had come to this conclusion she could not have told. But in her sleep her true nature had asserted itself and her mind was fixed. She had done what she had resolved never to do. She had denied her marriage.

"Oh, not I—not my true self—not my heart!" she whispered. "I never did deny Will nor my love. I'll go back today—to be his wife for ever—no matter what comes."

She felt calm and strong now and could look with impersonal horror upon her defection. In the clear light of morning, filled as she was with the conviction that she must for ever choose Will against all the world, further understanding came to her.

All these months that she had been hating Will and loving him and reviling him and saying such cruel things, it had been a deep unknown desire for her mother's home which goaded her. It had been rebellion against the continued humiliation of poverty and disappointment that their hopes and plans had not matured this time into success.

All her mental processes seemed loosened, open. Now from some canny instinct she was presented with a new enlightenment. She was—she had been—worse than the "gimme" women. She had been for months under the domination of a bitter jealousy of his work. She had been wounded because his activity was secret from her. She had loathed the mistress that he followed—his own career. So, wanting him to succeed and to earn money, she had not wanted him possessed with the preoccupation of such processes. She had seen in his gaze that inward adoration which is more obnoxious to a woman's greedy pride than another woman's lure can ever be—that love for what he was doing, that excluded interest in his own mind.

All her own mind clear at last in the limpid humility born of having failed Will, in intention, if not in conclusive act, she could reach a place on which to plant her feet for ever, as far as he and she were concerned.

"What have I to do with his work?" The answer to this question in the clear logic of her mind released her for ever from the petty jealousies of the artist's wife. The answer was "Nothing." She had nothing to do with his work at all. It was his own, and she must know it. The old unity she had wanted to preserve was possible only as a kind of over-unity, not going into details. It was the ground on which love placed its feet, the sky above love's head, but not the secret of the habitations of the soul.

He could not bear a child for her, though his love conceived it. And was not the business of bringing forth something new and bright, even if it were but a comic strip for the daily papers, as secret and silent a process as that in which she was now again engaged? In which she knew she was to bear another child. But no one intruded upon her privacy save by the most discreet and apologetic kindness. And might not the creative processes of artistry be as secret, as involuntary?

She had been resentful as petty men were sometimes resentful of a woman's preoccupation and distress in maternity. Will had been natural with her, casual and kind, and she could accord him the same courtesy. She wept afresh, but not the dreadful scalding tears of the day before. These were unselfish thanking tears distilled from a heart grown calm and good again.

"O God, help me to be a good wife—help me to be a good wife to Will, O God. Help me to understand him, to grow and change when life demands it of me. Help me to be a good wife." She went to the desk in the corner and wrote a telegram: "I have left Pastano's, and am at mamma's cottage with the children. Please come and get us today.—Ernestine."

Mock Spirits in Daytime, but Fear Them at Night

Night has great terrors for the inhabitants of the island of Bali, in the Dutch East Indies, because of the great number of demons (butas) prowling about in the dark. To appease these evil spirits, the mother of each home places on the doorstep, or shrine, a plaited tray filled with fruit and rice, often with a small lamp to show the way. When the demons find what they want they are supposed not to molest the people of the home. If a man has to go about by night he always carries a lighted torch and sings to keep the spirits away, as they do not like either light or music.

In the daylight, however, the natives can make fun of these spirits without coming to harm. On feast days they dress up and imitate the demons, mocking them. But as soon as the shadows lengthen, the clothes are returned to the temple and those who have worn them pray a little longer than usual and offer a little more food than regularly to the spirits who may come to their doorsteps.—New York Magazine.

Alumni Associations

The organization of those who have been students is characteristic of American schools. The first alumni association was established at Williams college in 1821. For many years alumni organizations were chiefly social, affording opportunity for the reunion of friends. As these associations developed, however, they proved to be useful not only in welding former students together in friendship, but in maintaining interest in and, in some cases, supplying funds for the various schools and colleges.

Lesson for January 4

THE BIRTH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 1:3-17, 80.
GOLDEN TEXT—And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his way.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Gratitude for Godly Parents.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Gratitude for Godly Parents.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Need of Physical and Spiritual Equipment for the Lord's Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Value of Training in the Desert.

I. The Parents of John the Baptist (vv. 5-7).

1. When they lived (v. 5). "In the days of Herod the King." While both were of the priestly line, the priesthood was very corrupt and the ruling classes most wicked. Zacharias and his wife lived in a time when it was not easy to be godly.

2. Their character (v. 6). "They were both righteous before God." Many appear to be righteous before men who are not righteous before God. They were so mated that they walked in the commandments of the Lord blameless. The highest good in wedded life can be attained only when both are united in Jesus Christ. John the Baptist had a godly heritage.

3. They were childless (v. 7). Though this godly couple possessed the joy of the Lord, there was a real lack on their home. No home is quite ideal into which no child has come.

II. The Birth of John the Baptist Promised (vv. 8-17).

1. By whom? (v. 11 cf. v. 19). The angel Gabriel appeared and made known the good news to Zacharias.

2. When? (vv. 8-14). While officiating as priest this good news came to him.

3. Characteristics of the child (vv. 15-17).

(1) "He shall be great in the sight of the Lord" (v. 15). He was highly esteemed by the Lord. This is infinitely better than if he had been highly esteemed in the eyes of men or in his own eyes.

(2) "Shall drink neither wine nor strong drink" (v. 15). The child was to be a Nazirite, separating himself from sensuous things and dedicating himself to the service of God.

(3) "He shall be filled with the Holy Ghost" (v. 15). The energy of the Divine Spirit would enable him to lead people to repentance (v. 16).

(4) "Shall go in the spirit and power of Elijah" (v. 17). In this power he was to prepare the people for the coming of the Saviour and the salvation which he was to bring.

III. Zacharias Asking for a Sign (vv. 18-23).

Although the aged priest was earnestly praying for the salvation of Israel, the gracious promise of the angel, which was the beginning of that salvation, staggered his faith. He was unable to believe that his fond hope and prayer would be realized. The angel gave to Zacharias a sign. He was smitten with dumbness which was to continue until the fulfillment of the promise.

IV. The Promise Fulfilled (vv. 57-63).

When the time came for the birth of John, Elizabeth brought forth a son, and the neighbors rejoiced with her. On the eighth day they circumcised the child and gave him a name according to the instruction of the angel. The name "John" was contrary to family usage. By means of writing Zacharias made known the name which the child by divine instruction was to have. At this time God opened the mouth of Zacharias and he offered praise.

V. John's Growth (v. 80).

This is a fine picture of a boy dedicated to the Lord's service.

1. The grace of God was with and on him. How beautiful to see children grow up with the stamp of heaven upon them.

2. Physical development. "The child grew." This literally means "kept growing." In this holy environment his plain fare as a Nazirite and his temperate habits gave him a robust constitution, thus fitting him for his life of toil and hardship.

3. Spiritual development. "Waxed strong in spirit." His inward man kept pace with outward growth.

4. Retired to the desert. His heritage from his parents, the special grace of the Spirit, needed the silence and the austerity of the desert for its completion. There God had an opportunity to speak to him. He not only had an opportunity to become acquainted with God, but was forced to rely upon God.

Ideals

Ideals are like the stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands, but like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and following them, you reach your destiny.—Carl Schurz.

Fear Gives Way to Faith

Nothing so demoralizes the forces of the soul as fear. Only as we realize the presence of the Lord does fear give way to faith.—Sarah Smiley.

Castoria corrects CHILDREN'S ailments

WHAT a relief and satisfaction it is for mothers to know that there is always Castoria to depend on when babies get fretful and uncomfortable! Whether it's teething, colic or other little upset, Castoria always brings quick comfort; and, with relief from pain, restless sleep.

And when older, fast-growing children get out of sorts and out of condition, you have only to give a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation to right the disturbed condition quickly.

Because Castoria is made expressly for children, it has just the needed mildness of action. Yet you can always depend on it to be effective. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment and cannot possibly do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, is fretful and out of sorts. Be sure to get the genuine; with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

American Birds Guests of Great Ocean Liner

The Olympic arrived at Southampton the other day with the remains of a "deck cargo" of a rather unusual kind. Hundreds of small birds of the sparrow and finch type had been carried out to sea on the liner when she left New York; they were roosting in her rigging when she left at night, and at dawn found themselves too far out at sea to attempt a return flight. These stowaways—or flyaways—therefore attached themselves to the great vessel until she came within sight of the French and English coasts, when they went ashore without complying with any of the passport regulations or making any declarations of alien birth and nationality. The news version of their exploit suggests, it will be gathered, that the whole trip was an accident, but that may be to underestimate the deliberately terrestrial attractions of the modern liner. It may have been less of an accident than a compliment; a tribute as profound as it was sincere to the success with which what was once a vessel has been transformed into a hotel. Those sparrows would have been perfectly happy under the eaves of a Grand Babylon—and if they noted palm courts as they fluttered round the berthed liner in New York how were they to understand that these were not the same sort of furniture as on Fifth avenue? They attached themselves to what they thought was a hotel—and when they found that it was a floating one the hotel was still vast enough to accommodate them without difficulty. Indeed, it ought to have been very glad to see them. Palm courts and shop windows are all very well as incidents in the urban illusion, but nothing could be better than a few sparrows for putting the finishing touches to an accurate reconstruction of city life at sea.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

Aviator Chased Away

Police of Maidstone, England, believe they are the first force in the world to order an air liner to "move on." On his way to Croydon, shortly after midnight, the pilot of a Belgian air liner ran into mist and clouds. Turning, he attempted to reach Lympne, but found his way back to the coast also barred, and for 90 minutes he circled round and round over Maidstone. Many people were alarmed by the low flying of the plane, and the police twice got

"Humor" Unappreciated

Inhabitants of the little Hungarian town of Bonyhad are breaking their heads trying to devise some just punishment for a man who for many weeks thought it a great joke to break into one house after another only for the purpose of frightening the inmates by walking ghostlike into their bedrooms with a sheet over his head and quickly disappearing as soon as he had succeeded in creating an alarm.

EXCESS ACID SICKENS—GET RID OF IT!

Sour stomach, indigestion, gas, usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. Food sours in the stomach.

Correct excess acid with an alkali. The best form of alkali is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It works instantly. The stomach becomes sweet. Your heartburn, gas, headache, biliousness or indigestion has vanished!

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the pleasant way—the efficient way—to relieve the effects of over-acidity.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has been standard with doctors for over 50 years. 25c and 50c bottles at druggists.

Handicapped Children

Three million children, over 10 per cent of all those in the elementary schools of the United States, are suffering from defective sight, speech, hearing, mental retardation, emotional stability or some other handicap. These figures do not include 6,000,000 who are undernourished and over 600,000 with weak hearts.

Seeking Harmony

"This song is not suited to my voice," said the prima donna.

"Well," said the discouraged manager, "I suppose I'll have to get you another song. There's no use of trying to have your voice rewritten."

When folks are miserable they say to themselves that they expected too much from the world, anyway.
